THE ARTS ARE EVERYWHERE!

- Most people start their New Mexico adventure in Albuquerque in the center of the state. While there they visit the National Hispanic Cultural Center Museum, attend a performance in one of their performance spaces, and eat in their excellent restaurant.
- Go west from Albuquerque and you arrive in Gallup the center of Native American jewelry making. Browse the pawn shops or attend the Gallup Inter-Tribal Indian Ceremonial in August. Experience art exhibits, nightly performances, queen and tiny tot pageants, a rodeo, and song and dance.

- Don’t want to go west from Albuquerque? Then head north to Santa Fe, where the oldest state capitol in the country is home to one of the hottest contemporary arts venues, the art collective Meow Wolf. Enter an alternate reality, see a performance by a contemporary band, or hang out in their maker space. This popular venue has attracted hundreds of thousands of visitors since its opening.
- Keep on north from Santa Fe and you pass through Española and the Española Valley Fiber Arts Center. Fiber art reigns supreme in New Mexico. Take home a scarf, a shawl, a weaving. Get information about the many fiber artists working in New Mexico and visit their studios.

- From Española, continue north on your New Mexico adventure to Taos. Experience the Paseo Project an annual outdoor experimental arts festival featuring local and international artists who have created immersive and participatory art installations around the plaza in historic downtown Taos. It’s thought provoking and playful.
